

TIAA-CREF Life Insurance Company ("TIAA Life"), and each and every current and future affiliate of TIAA Life (herein after "we," "us," "our") are required by law or regulation to provide you with certain disclosures and information about your transactions with us "in writing" ("Required Communications").

With your prior consent, the Required Communications you receive through electronic delivery ("eDelivery") may include: policy and application documents, account updates, transaction confirmations, annual privacy notices, regulatory disclosures and other administrative notices, and tax reporting forms.

We will email you a notification when a document is available for viewing, or otherwise provide you a direct link to that document. You can log in to your secure TIAA account to access the document, or if a link is provided, directly link to it. To use eDelivery, be sure you have access to the Internet, are able to send and receive email that contains hyperlinks and are able to view the material on your computer, tablet or other mobile device. Some documents will be in PDF format, which requires that you use free Adobe Reader software, which you can download at www.adobe.com.

If our email is returned undeliverable, we will notify you by regular mail of the availability of the document in your secure TIAA inbox and send future communications via paper until you update your email address. To change your email address, update your communication selections, withdraw your consent, or change your eDelivery preference, access our Client Self-Service Portal.

We will securely store a record of these communications. You may also print or download all Required Communications and keep them for your records.
